

Call for Papers
DIAL Conference on Development Economics
Université Paris-Dauphine and French Institute of Research for Development
June 29th and 30th 2017, Paris

The Université Paris-Dauphine and the French Institute of Research for Development (IRD) are organizing their fourth joint international conference on international and development economics. The conference will be held in Paris, and will provide a forum to discuss innovative theoretical and empirical research in international and development economics. Interested researchers are invited to send a paper dealing with those topics.

Keynote speakers:

Guillaume Daudin, Université Paris-Dauphine
Elia La Ferrara, Bocconi University
Rohini Somanathan, Delhi School of Economics

Preliminary versions of papers can be submitted, but abstracts alone will not be accepted. Please submit your proposals including keywords and a 150 word abstract in PDF form by January 31st, 2017 via the conference web site.

The results of the selection process will be announced by April 2nd, 2017.
